X X	Hours Worked Travel Time Training and Conferences Meals and Breaks	Х	Waiting Time On-call time Sleep time

HOURS WORKED

Hours worked include hours during which an employee is actually performing productive work as well as the hours when no work is performed but the employer requires the individual to remain available for the next assignment. Such work may be performed at the employer's premises, an employer related job site as well as working at home. An employee must be compensated for all "hours worked" for the employegardless of where the work is performed Additionally, ronexempt employees responding to work elapiworking on projects from home after hours, attending work related trainings or who are on from the meeting place to the work sits compensablelf the employee stops at the home office for his or her own convenience, the time traveling from the office to the site is not compensable.

TRAVEIDURING THE WORKDAY

Travel as a part of the employer's principal activity must be counted as hours worked. If the travel is for the benefit of the employe, it is compensable.

EXAMPLE If an Institution requires its college recruiters to meet on campets the traveling to a recruitment site, the recruiters would be required to include the time spent traveling between the home campus and the recruitment site in the hours worked by each employee. Likewise, hours worked any time spent by any recruitent between two or more recruitment sites during the same workday. The Institution would not, however, be required to include as hours worked time spent by the employee traveling from home to the home campus before traveling to the recruitment site or traveling home from the home campus after the workday is over. It would also not be

If the employee is the driver of the vehicle, the employee must be compensated as driving work time.

Time spent at a hotel withreedom to use time for the isemployee's own purposes is not compensable.

Example-Travel outside of normal work hourd.

EXAMPLE Firemen playing a video game while vaiting for an emergency call his example epresents a situation where the hallmarks of orduty waiting time are present: the employee.

- x is not engaged in the work for which they were hired;
- x remains subject to the direction of his or her employer;
- x is not able to effectively use the time for themselves; and
- x is unsure as to when the waiting period will occur and/or how long it will last.

Off-duty waiting time does not count as hours worked the criteria below is met:
